Twenty-five Brigham Young University coeds, contestants for the title of Miss Snow White of 1952, were presented for the student body in assembly this morning.

From the vote taken by ballot following the assembly, the popularity of the contestants will be determined. The Snow queen will be chosen on three counts: popularity, ability to skate or ski, and appearance in a skating or skiing outfit.

Ski Judging

Skiing ability will be judged at Timp Haven Saturday at 1 p.m. Committee in charge of these events include Miss Leona Holbrook of the Y faculty; Earl Miller of the Timpanogos Ski school; and Lynn Rockwood, Provo Recreation director.

Monday noon, on the lawn in front of the Joseph Smith building, Miss Snow White contestants will be judged on their appearance in outdoor outfits.

Three-point Judging

Walker Given Business Post By Legislators

Myron Walker, American Fork, was elected student body business manager by the Legislative Council in its meeting Monday night.

A senior and an accounting major, Mr. Walker has maintained a B+ average in all his college work, and had the highest scholastic record in a graduating class of 117 in his high school.

Last Minute Activities

Although Mr. Walker just recently returned from the Southern California mission field, he has been active in campus affairs. He is a member of the Blue Keys, Alpha Kappa Psi business fraternity, Brigadier social unit, Delta Phi, and is a senior class representative on the Legislative Council.

Before his mission he was an officer of the Intercollegiate Knights, and when called had just been elected to the position he now holds—studentbody business manager.

Desires Opportunities

Mr. Walker's reasons for applying for the position of business manager are three-fold, according to his letter of application. First, from his work in the church and from other previous experience, he has learned that the greatest opportunities for growth and development are in service to others. Second, he is a business major and considers that he will gain valuable practical experience in his chosen field. Third, he enjoys working and associating with people.

On the basis of his experience and personal reasons for desiring the job, Mr. Walker pledged himself to handle the work with a firm and unbiased hand, and to devote all his time and effort to fulfilling his duties in the most complete possible manner.

Invitational Forensic Tourney Set for Y Campus Saturday

The clear, winter air of Brigham Young University's campus will find itself flooded with words Saturday as over 100 expert debaters and speakers from all over Utah converge for an invitational forensic meet.

Entrants from all the junior colleges in the state are expected, with freshmen and sophomores of the three senior colleges also entering.

Registration will be from 8 to 9 a.m. The rest of the day will feature rounds of debate, extemporaneous and impromptu speaking, and oratory. A schedule of exact times and rooms for the various events will be released Saturday.

Same Old Refrain: We Apologize

The UNIVERSE extends apologies to those candidates for Snow Carnival Queen whose pictures do not appear in today's UNIVERSE.

We tried to obtain prints of all candidates, but the late deadline for submitting petitions made it impossible for us to get all pictures in time to meet our schedule.

Spectators' Steam Almost Causes Rain in Fieldhouse

An interesting phenomenon of physics, not a leaky roof, has been the cause of water on the playing floor of the new Brigham Young University fieldhouse, according to Leland Perry, superintendent of buildings and grounds.

Heating engineers from Salt Lake City attended the BYU-Denver game last weekend to study the problem of temperature and humidity control in the giant structure.

With the crowd of 7,000 in the fieldhouse the humidity rose to a point where cooling of air near the skylight below 60° would have caused condensation. Control of circulation prevented the fall of "rain," however.

Mr. Perry indicated that on the basis of information gathered at the game, necessary adjustments in heating equipment can be made to remedy the situation.

An extra feature of the forensic meet will be a special radio event which will run simultaneously with the debate. The radio contests will deal with broadcasting announcing of music and commercial programs, and news analysis. Each school has been asked to submit a 15 minute live student broadcast, with the best of these programs to be rebroadcast over KBYU.

Those interested in entering the meet are asked to contact Dr. LaVar Bateman, speech casualty instructor and BYU forensic director.

The meet, it was pointed out, is open only to freshmen and sophomores.

BYU-Australian Debaters Primed for Monday Joust

It's hard to tell exactly what will happen next Monday night when the touring Australian debating team tangles with the Brigham Young University debate squad.

According to Dr. LaVar Bateman, speech faculty member and forensic director at BYU, the Australian team will provide something different and entertaining when it comes to debate. They debate the English style, relying not so much on facts and figures as on wit.

The Australian team will debate the positive side of the problem, Resolved: That dictatorship is the most efficient form of government.

The event is scheduled at 7 p.m. in College Hall, and the public is invited to attend free of charge.

Negative side of the debate will be argued by students Spencer Palmer, Thatcher, Ariz., and Keith Schofield, Rupert, Ida., both prominent intermountain debaters.

The Australian team boasts Robin Rhodes Millhouse, a fifth year law student at St. Peter's College, Adelaide. He was a member of the University of Adelaide's winning team in the intervarsity all-Australian debate team this year. John Boyd Reid, a law student at Melbourne University, is a member of the Melbourne University Debating society.

BYU-A&M Ducat Disposal Begins Today

Student tickets to the BYU-Colorado A&M game went on sale today at 10 a.m.

They will be distributed until 5 p.m. today, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow, and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday.

Tickets will be reserved again, but activity cards will be punched.

Authority on Russia Speaks Tuesday

Dr. Ethan Colton, nationally recognized lecturer-interpreter, will speak next Tuesday at devotional on "The Russia That We Face."

Dr. Colton's duties in YMCA World Service during and after World War I took him to 40 foreign states and colonies. For the past 20 years he has visited Europe annually.

He is the author of the books, "The XYZ of Communism," "Four Patterns of Revolution," and "Forty Years With Russians."

Drama Tickets Offered Free At Info Booth

Students wanting tickets to the forthcoming production of "John Loves Mary" should obtain them this week in order to gain admittance on their activity cards, according to Prof. Morris M. Clinger, director of the play.

Tickets are on sale this week at the Smith information booth between 1-5 p.m. Beginning Monday, and continuing through the week of the play, it will be necessary to purchase tickets at the College Hall ticket office on lower campus. Although tickets have sold rapidly, there are still plenty of good seats left, Prof. Clinger said.

Opens Tuesday

The play will open on Tuesday evening for a five-night run. Performances will begin each night at 8:15.

Cast members include Keith Orme, Idaho Falls, Ida., and Joyce Sommerlade, Portland, Ore., in the title roles of young lovers John and Mary. The other couple in the romantic mixup, Fred and Lilly, are portrayed by Wes Craig, Portland, Ore., and Jeanette Crowe, Monrovia, Calif.

Wilford E. Smith of the BYU sociology faculty and Alice Brady, Las Vegas, Nev., take the parts of Mary's parents, Senator James McKenzie and his wife, Phyllis.

Red Cross Worker

Jo Oveson, Pendleton, Ore., plays Miss Beechwood, the Red Cross worker who enjoys reuniting separated husbands and wives. Ed Davies, Seattle, Wash., and James Fife, Burlingame, Calif., complicate matters militarily in the parts of General Biddle and exLieutenant O'Leary, and Ned Hoopes, Norwalk, Calif., has the part of Oscar, the elevator man.

Letter to the Editor

Ticket Trouble Too ...

Dear Editor:

In behalf of the studentbody, I would like to raise a question on the system of issuing tickets to games and other functions.

I assume that the activity fee charged each student is used to cover some of the cost of these activities. If only $5 of this fee is used to support the activities, there will be available about $25,000 this quarter. If there are 12 functions in the quarter, then the students will be contributing over $2000 to each function. While I do not presume to suggest uses for the activity fund, I do believe the University can afford to cater to the group which furnishes the greatest support to the program of activities.

The person who issued tickets to the basketball games last weekend seemed to take as a personal affront any request for tickets to any specific area of the fieldhouse. To those who entered the line early in hope of getting tickets near the playing floor, the answer was that the tickets to the front rows had already been given out. Some who were indifferent and came later when there was no line, found an abundance of tickets to the rows near the front. In some cases, couples were given tickets in different sections, implying that only single tickets were available, even to those first in line.

I think even students should be allowed some consideration of their individual preference, and those interested enough to enter the line early should be allowed their choice of seats which are then available. Those persons selected to issue the tickets should be willing to serve the students. If they persist in their belief that they are superior beings who must enforce their whims upon the hoi polloi, let them be ousted in favor of others with healthier attitudes. Let us do away with the totalitarian idea and return to democracy, at least in our studentbody offices.

Gene Lewis

Editor's Note: The argument is valid, but those in charge of ticket distribution have recognized weaknesses in the present method, and are attempting to correct them for future games.

True Blue ...

Colorful 'Flyboy' Uniforms Garner Admiring Glances

by Jim Brimhall

The blue hue on campus is visibly increasing as ROTC cadets are required to wear uniforms for their first Air Science class of the week and on Fridays.

About 60 per cent of the cadets have received their outfits, according to Sergeant Stephens, non-commissioned officer in charge of supply quarters. Uniforms are being issued as fast as shipments arrive.

Uniforms Issued

The cadets have been issued uniforms minus the insignia, but uniforms will be complete starting this week since the insignia shipments have arrived at the supply building and are being issued by Sergeant Stephens.

ROTC lower classmen will be identified by insignia on their caps, an Air Force shield with a scroll below and a spread eagle above.

Upper classmen will wear larger cap insignia with a wreath of stars surrounding the shield.

Cadet Officer Insignia

Cadet officers, soon to be announced, will quickly be spotted by shoulderboards in addition to the larger cap insignia.

While cadets are speculating on the girls' reactions to uniforms campus coeds have formed opinions already. They think the "boys in blue" look sharp, especially when trousers are neatly creased, caps worn straight, and shoes shined to a mirror finish.

Home Study Class Catalog for '52 Is Now Available

Mrs. Luwana Edwards of the Bureau of Home Study announced today that the Home Study catalog will be available to students by the end of this week.

The catalog will contain a complete listing of all Brigham Young University's correspondence classes. It will include approximately 225 classes with college credit, 10 classes with high school credit, and one naturalization class without credit.

Two new classes added this year will be studies of photography and genealogy.

Students who anticipate leaving school and want to continue their studies with full credit may obtain a Home Studies catalog in the basement of the Maeser building.

Special rates are given to boys in the armed forces.

BYU Library Adds Tongan-English Dictionary Volume

A beautifully-scribed Tongan-English dictionary, only one in existence and believed to be the only such book ever written, has been given to the Brigham Young University by Albert S. Jones, who served as an LDS missionary in the Samoan Islands.

Mr. Jones compiled and copied the 205-page volume in 1894-95 as no dictionaries of any kind were available. As there were no printing facilities, he copied it by hand.

He is a former student of the old Brigham Young Academy, having studied under a daughter of Brigham Young.

Lawson D. Hamblin, BYU order and purchase librarian, was presented with the dictionary.

Dr. Nibley's Series Due Translation

"Lehi in the Desert," a series of articles written by Dr. Hugh Nibley of the Brigham Young University faculty, is now being translated into German. The series was first published in the Improvement Era in 1949-50. Der Stern magazine in Germany will publish it, and the article is soon to be translated and published in Spanish and French.

The Improvement Era also published "The World of the Jaredites," another series of articles by Dr. Nibley which is to be translated into several foreign languages.

The Lehi article correlated the description of Lehi in the book of Mormon with Arabic sources to determine whether an authentic picture of the life of desert people is reflected.

Dr. Nibley is an internationally-recognized linguist and historian, and has received world-wide correspondence commending his work in the two series of articles.

Saturday Is Still Free:

The school days at the Branch Agricultural College in Cedar City almost became six. Thank goodness Sunday can't be subject to change. The plan of attending school on Saturday met defeat, however, and the students can now quit holding their breaths. Incidently the vote was 153 against the motion and 69 in favor of the suggestion.

Crime Does Not Pay:

An early-morning thief overlooked the suspicious quick thinking of two University of New Mexico heroes, Charles Williamson and William Edwards, when he confiscated a shoebox of billfolds, rings, lighters, and watches from the Mesa Vista dormitory. When the intruder entered their room between 4:30 and 5:30 a.m., the two roommates doubted his excuse for the disturbance and watched his moves. They secured the phone numbers he called, and later that morning when money and wallets were discovered missing, they gave the police the information that lead to the thief's arrest.

Ma, Why Don't You Write?

Handy, large green trash cans receive more mail every day at the University of New Mexico. There, students mistaking the trash cans for mail boxes, insert their letters full of pleas for "send me" and never receive an answer. The hinged doors of both "pieces of furniture" must confuse the work-weary students.

Proof Positive:

Women will never give up. Proof of this came from the girls at Michigan State. Some of the coeds organized a football team to demonstrate that women are not the weaker sex and challenged last year's intramural champs. The score: men—13, women———13!

It's Your Move:

Through the grapevine comes this drastic but unverified news. The police are restricting good night kisses at Marron hall. Students are fighting the move with zeal, for as appears in the New Mexico Lobo:

"Every campus swain knows the language of the good-night kiss: a quick peck is a formality when the girl is late, a lingering kiss means it's been a real evening and the future may hold many more, and a kiss on the cheek means, 'So long, it's been good to know ya.' This workless means of communication is a UNM tradition, and should be continued for the benefit of future generations of students."

CLARK'S, the Man's Shop, have some extraordinary items within their little "lean-to" at 245 North University this week also. And as long as they're paying for this we might just as well mention them.

Spring goods are rolling into the store—and new shipments of sports coats and spring suits are arriving daily. Trade names like Campus Togs, Society Brand and Louart of California. They're all at Clark's for you to choose from. Drop in and look at them, try them on, and then just try to resist buying something. We dare you!

"THE LAUNDRY made a mistake and sent me the wrong shirt. The collar is so tight I can hardly breath."

"That's your shirt all right, but you've got your head through a buttonhole."

— O —

NO BUTTONHOLE trouble with Lancer's. Have you seen the new Lancer dress shirt that Clark's have? Six beautiful colors to choose from. All soft, roll collared numbers with French cuffs done in Oxford cloth. You can have either button down or plain collar models. It's the biggest name in collegiate shirt wear —Lancer.

DO YOUR FEET feel clammy and chilly these days? Does snow and water cause you to feel loggy, bring on colds? Then put on your shoes, sap!

And if that doesn't do the trick, Clark's have a brand new stock of overshoes. Natural gum rubber jobs, they've got zippers for added comfort and good looks. Don't freeze this winter. Don't drown. Do something about it at Clark's.

The girl greeted her boy friend: "Notice anything different about me?"

"New dress?"

"No."

"New shoes?"

"No, something else."

"I give up."

"I'm wearing a gas mask."

— O —

THAT ABOUT WRAPS it up for this week. Don't forget to make plans for the forthcoming Junior Prom. It's nice to have a date for that affair—and also helps to dress up for it. You should wear a tux, and Clark's can tell you how to wear it and they'll even furnish you with one. Drop in and ask Dal and Verl about it.

Sports Scope

The Wreck of the Redskin

by Ted Johnson

Top of the heap! That is where the Cougars found themselves following last week's round of conference competition. Wyoming also emerged victorious, and with the Cats, now lead the loop race.

When the smoke and fog had lifted from Saturday's contests, the clawing Cougar and the contented Cowpoke looked around and viewed the wreck of the Redskin. Isn't that just too touching?

Called the best team in the area by many experts, the sorry 'Skins found themselves on the short end of a rope that snatched victory right out of their grasp. The Denver Pioneers turned the trick and started the first round of upsets which will probably dot the circuit slate.

Starting both games somewhat on the slow and ragged side, the X squad had to show plenty of spark and drive to edge out the Pioneers in the conference opener in the fieldhouse. Richey, Christensen and Jarman were the sparkplugs in getting the Cat machine purring on the road to victory.

Ted Johnson

Jarman was particularly outstanding with his rebounding aggressiveness. Many times the elongated lad from Lyman, Wyo., would leap and retrieve a loose ball in true Cougar fashion. He also found his way to the floor in pursuit of the casaba on more than a few occasions, and with this belting, wound up with a dozen and a half counters to his credit.

Another Cougar combination sparked the surge of the Watts coached club on Saturday evening. Richey, who did not see action the previous night, and Mateljan, promising Frosh center, proved to be the undoing of the Grizzly aggregation. Mateljan garnered top honors for the evening, but had it not been for the efforts of Romney, things would have been a little "less rosy for long-armed Nick.

Romney had to work for quite a spell before he found the magic hoop, but when he finally made contact, it spelled goodbye to the Montana's hopes. While raking together a total of thirteen points, he showed plenty of touch and play; note his mates.

Dean Larsen came through in great style on both nights and gave the fans a good show. Chris also looked more like his self on the shooting side. He was never looked otherwise as a defensive man.

All in all, the Cougars don't look bad. They are a very young team and have plenty of what it takes to win a conference crown. Granted, there will be plenty of tough games and some tough teams to face in the remainder of the season, but no matter what anyone says, 'Don't sell the Cougars short.'

* * * * *

A word to the wise should be sufficient. Here is the word, so take heed.

All you avid outdoorsmen who find sport in target shooting with firearms had better be on your toes. According to first-hand information, there is a stiff penalty for shooting a gun on the X mountain. It seems that this area is claimed by the State Game Department as a game preserve and any activity on the premises can be punished by a game warden and a judge. The unhappy lad in forest green and a jeep station wagon acted as though his mother had just kicked him in the teeth, not that he didn't need it, it was just that he was taking out his spite on the rest of humanity. Anyway, heed his warning so that you won't have to face him personally. 'Stay off Y mountain with your gun.' If you are going to have to shoot, find out where the law allows it and proceed accordingly. Otherwise, the fine is $25 and you might not have a gun when you get through!

If you say that the place is not posted or any warnings listed, you are entirely correct. If you say that the Y students have no other place to shoot, you are right again, and if you maintain that it goes only on anyone caught in the wrong, no matter what his intentions are, you are still batting 1000.

The warden seems to think that the way to stop this activity and teach the Y students that such things are against the law is to do so individually in a Provo City court.

Ah, well, such is life in a glue factory. It stinks!!! Just remember, the judge may be a fine man and all, but the law is what he reads, and as I said before, a word to the wise should be sufficient. Believe me, I can give you all the information you need without your having to 'tell it to the Judge.'

Cat, Coloag Tilt Tops Skyline Slate

The next three nights in the Intermountain region are busy ones, as far as basketball is concerned, with Skyline Eight teams billing six games in the weekend series.

Beginning tonight in the Logan arena, the week's contests get underway with Wyoming coming west for a two-game stand. They take on the Utes tonight, then journey to the home of the Grizzlies for a game with Montana on Saturday.

Colorado A&M will find itself in plenty of hot water when they cross the mountains for a week-end visit in the Beehive State. 'Skins After Blood

They tackle the Redskins on the Ute court tomorrow evening in the only game on schedule for conference squads. The Utah Skins will be battling to get back in the win column after their loss to Denver Pioneers on their own court, last Saturday night. This game dropped the Utes from the ranks of the unbeaten and put them in third place in the conference race, behind BYU and Wyoming.

BYU will play host to the Rams on Saturday night in the new Cougar fieldhouse. The Colags, currently riding near the bottom of the loop standings, should not be too tough for the high-riding Cat contingent, who will be playing their last home game for two weeks. The Pumas outlasted Denver's surge and completely dominated the Montana team in their last two encounters on the hard-woods, and will be in good condition for the Colorado Aggie clash. If all goes well this game should give the Cougars an even stronger grip on the loop lead.

Topnotch Battle

Another game will draw the attention of Utah fans. Utah will be entertaining the Utah State quintet on their fieldhouse floor. Although Utah State has not done too well in conference play thus far, an outstanding game is always on tab when the two clubs meet.

Denver will travel to the Lobo lair to battle with the New Mexicans on Saturday night. Having dropped Utah, the Pioneers will be fighting to attain a leading place in the Skyline ranks.

Prediction Contest Draws Eighty Student Guessers

The Basketball Score Predictions contest is gaining momentum as evidenced by increased participation.

From nearly 30 entrants in the contest, only two persons anticipated the upset of Utah by Denver. Most entrants favored BYU over Montana, Utah over Denver and Wyoming over Utah State.

This week's list of winners had been extended to five because of the added number of predictions given they are: first, Dallin Gardner; second, Glenn R. Dixon; third, Bill Farnsworth; fourth, Milo Lambert; and fifth, John Teichert. Honorable mention: Doug Gustafson, Dave Peery, Bruce Preece and Hugh Gates.

As yet, the prize for the contest winner for the season has not been selected, but a suitable gift will be chosen and announced in the near future.

Try your hand at predicting these games billed for Saturday

1. Utah State at Utah.
2. Denver at New Mexico.
3. Colorado A&M at BYU.

One Night Stand . . .

Provo Stakehouse Prom Site Selected for Second Year

Following the innovation of last year when the Junior Prom was held off campus, this year's prom will be held on the day that comes but once every four years on February 29—in the new Provo Stake House. Starting time will be 9 p.m.

Avoids Confusion

Desiring to get away from the confusion of a two-night stand for the big event, the Prom committee, headed by Dick Hulsh, decided on that location as the best available in Utah county. Situated at Ninth East and First South, the building will provide ample parking space for all the attending students. A feature of this year will be a uniformed doorman to assist couples when they arrive.

Bottlenecks Overcome

Checking of wraps and serving of refreshments, two of the big bottlenecks at past proms, will be handled in such a manner that Prom-goers will not have to wait for more than two minutes to be served in either case. And when leaving the dance, the couples will find members of the Provo City Police force directing traffic from the parking lot so that there will not be any trouble.

"As an inducement to the fellows," stated Mr. Hulsh, "we are working on the administration to let the dorm girls stay out until 2 a.m. And as an inducement to the girls—remember that it's Leap Year so you won't have to wait for your "Big Moment" to do the asking."
